Fayette, Feb. 17, 1794.

To the Public.

AN Act was paſſed laſt ſeſſion of Aſſembly at Frankfort, by the houſe of repreſentatives, for taking the ſenſe of the people in the ſtate of Kentucky at our next election for appointing another convention, for the purpoſe of altering and amending ſuch parts of our preſent conſtitution as ſhould be judged proper and convenient, ſo as to render it more beneficial and of greater utility than at preſent; which act was ſent to the houſe of ſenate for their concurrence, but was by them rejected, for reaſons beſt known to themſelves; and as the conſtitution is at preſent fraught with many exceptionable clauſes, and ſuch as prevents the paſſing good and wholeſome laws, eſpecially ſuch as relate to our judiciary ſyſtem, and thereby impoſes unneceſſary taxes on us to a very large amount. I now take the liberty of humbly requeſting thoſe who have a right of ſuffrage, at our next election to vote for or againſt the calling a convention; it is likewiſe humbly requeſted of the reſpective ſheriffs in each county to receive and render ſuch votes to the ſecretary, in order that the Aſſembly may take ſuch meaſures thereon as may be conſiſtent with the minds of a majority on that ſubject; it is hoped that the ſheriffs will prove more faithful and friendly to their country than a ſelf created body of men, who perhaps, are diffident of loſing power they may not again poſſeſs.

I am the publick's obedient ſervant.

Notice

IS hereby given, that the office of Inſpection is open, and kept by Lizman Baiſey at his houſe, in and for the county of Bourbon and that part of Clarke County which formerly belonged to Bourbon county. Alſo, the office of Inſpection is now open and kept by Abraham Bradley, and for the county of Maſon, all thoſe concerned may take notice accordingly.

THO. MARSHALL,
Inſpector of Revenue.

LONDON, September 26.

It has been resolved in the municipality, that all young men, from 18 to 25 years of age, who, after the departure of the troops ordered to the frontiers, shall be found at Paris, shall be declared to be deserters, and punished as such.

October 8.

Some decisive action must take place in Flanders, before the combined armies can secure to themselves safe winter cantonments.

prince Edward is to join Sir Charles Gray in the West Indies, with two regiments from Canada.

It is not expected the campaign will last much longer. Orders have been given at Ostend, to prepare there, and in the neighbourhood, quarters for sixteen thousand men.

October 10.

At present, there is a constant correspondence carried on between our court and that of Naples. It is thought that the latter will be prevailed upon to enter into the league formed by the other courts of Europe, against the French Republic. Calonne has arived at Naples from Gibraltar, on his way from Spain, as he is an able instrument in carrying this business into execution.

The French do not despond in the least, though attacked almost by all the potentates of the world. They themselves say, and their enemies admit, that they will be in a much more preferable situation, next winter to that which they experienced at the conclusion of the last campaign. Our allies find their coffers are exhausted, and their subjects murmur aloud at the continuance and the consequences that must arise from the war. In consequence of this they are directing their chief efforts to seduce into the confederacy those powers who wisely have forborne to commence hostilities against a nation of beggarly Sans Culottes.

We are told, in the government prints, that the French are to invade this country, and that the British forces on the continent are to be ordered home, to protect us from the Sans Culottes. We shall welcome the brave heroes when they come; but the idea is suggested merely to prepare us for their happy arrival, because that the chimercial proposal of the French invading this country, has been scouted as often as mentioned in the National Convention.

BOSTON, December 23.

From a Correspondent.

What a dangerous and alarming situation are the United States thrown into by the iniquitous and diabolical plans of the British government, which, contrary to the laws of nature and of nations the most debased, have covenanted with Spain, Portugal, Russia, and even with the Algerines: to destroy the Liberties of France and America. These engines played off by the intrigues of the British Court, to the ruin of our trade and commerce, with which our agricultural interest is immediately connected, calls loudly for the determination of the United States to stop all intercourse with Great Britain or her colonies. It is generally believed that the other powers in Europe would have continued friendly to our commerce, if they had been wholly free from English influence corruption, therefore, as they are the infamous instigators of our misfortunes, let us retaliate on them alone; let us shew them that spirit as a nation united in one common cause, which they before experienced as colonies only: but to their sorrow. Let the capitol of Massachusetts set the example, as in old times, and all will follow on until the work is completed. Call a town meeting—let the door of Faneuil-Hall be once more opened—let our fathers and their sons assemble and declare a Non-importation agreement; and address the Congress of the United States to stand firm at their post; to support our treaties with France, and punish the man or men who dare to violate them—cement the union of the two nations by the strongest commercial ties, and above all, to root out British influence from our councils and country. Address, also, our beloved President, concerning the differences that may have been excited by evil minded men between him and the Minister of the French Republic, and pray that they may be cleared upon easy and reasonable terms, to their mutual satisfaction, and to the lasting friendship and interest of both nations.

NEW-YORK, December 21.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Charleston, to his friend in this city, dated the 10th instant.

"The general assembly for this state met a few days ago—the first business that attracted their attention, was the arresting of Major Hamilton and Mr. Drayton (the latter is Secretary to our Governor). They are to be tried for high treason, having accepted a commission from Mr. Genet, for the purpose of raising five thousand men in the back country, to assist the French—they have actually received a large sum of money, and were set about enlisting men: Several members of the assembly declare, that they are possessed of proof sufficient to convict them. One of our chief judges, Mr. Grenup, is impeached for neglect of duty, and it is thought he will lose his place—it is also thought, that our Governor will be impeached in a few days for aiding and assisting the French privateers contrary to law.

Lisbon, 22d October, 1793.

PETER S. LIVINGSTON, Esq. New York.

"DEAR SIR,

"I have the pleasure to inform you, that I have this day obtained a promise from the court, of a convoy for our ships, about sixteen in number, to be provided as soon as they shall be ready to sail. My letter, and the very polite and friendly answer from the Portuguese Minister, go by this letter to the secretary of state; the vessel sails to-morrow. I pray you to communicate this pleasing and very important intelligence to all the merchants, &c. &c. in your city.

I am, dear sir,
most sincerely, yours.

PHILADELPHIA, December 17.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in the Genesee country, to his friend in Rutland, dated November 14.

"Some days since, a number of chiefs of the Six Nations, who were returning from the late treaty, lodged at my house; among them was a captain Jacobs, an intelligent person, who says—that he has been among the Miami Indians near seven months: he tells, that he has endeavored, in vain, to reconcile them to peace; and that there are four tribes who refuse to comply with any terms offered by the United States. They say they can kill ten times as many men as they shall lose. Jacobs and the others further added, that there would be no danger in this settlement, as long as the Six Nations were in alliance with the United States."

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Manchester, to his friend in Philadelphia, dated October 5, 1793.

"A very great number of people, in this town, are already drawn into the vortex of ruin, occasioned by the war. You would scarcely know Manchester by the looks of the inhabitants. Merriment seems banished—Long faces are general. Knowles, of Gortan, is sentenced to three months imprisonment, for disrespect to the King. Another is condemned to the pillory, and two years imprisonment in Lancaster castle, for damning all kings in general, and George the Third in particular.

"Mr. Philips, bookseller of Leicester, is sentenced to eighteen months of solitary imprisonment, for selling the second part of Paine's Rights of Man, before the verdict which declared it a libel."

As to the solitary imprisonment of Mr. Philips, under the circumstances above stated, we may exclaim with honest Uncle Toby, "Our armies in Flanders swore terribly, but nothing like this!" The house of Stuart took pretty smart notice of Printers and Authors, but we recollect nothing which taken altogether, is so very bad as this. There is not a single bookseller in the British dominions, from Thomas Cadell down to the lowest stall-keeper, in the whole country, who might not be imprisoned, for the same offence, and with equal justice.

We have seen another letter from the south of England, which mentions a shocking circumstance—A person upon half pay in the naval service, was threatened with a prosecution for seditious discourse. He prevented this disaster, by cutting his own throat.

December 27.

Since the last accounts from South Carolina of a military force collecting there under the authority of a Foreign Minister, we hear with great concern, from several channels as respectable chat 20 thousand Carmagnoles under the command of citizen Caira, and 15 thousand Sans Culotes under the order of Bonnet rogue, are collecting, under the same authority, the first in the state of New-York, and the other in the New England states. Their first exploit will be a sudden eruption into Canada, as soon as the ice of the Lakes will bear them. For the purpose of greater expedition the army are to be exercised and disciplined on Skates.

RICHMOND, October 20.

From the (London) Morning Chronicle, of July 27.

On Thursday evening was decided before Mr. Justice Buller, at his house in Lincoln's Inn-fields, a case of the utmost importance to the rights of neutral powers. Colin M'Kellan and James Ferguson, both Americans, and who were impressed on the 18th of last month, were brought before the above mentioned judge, by virtue of writs of Habeas Corpus, which were issued on the 21st of June last, returnable immediately, for the purpose of obtaining their discharge; when Lieutenant Howarth, the commander of the Enterprize, returned that these men were natural born subjects of the king of Great Britain, and therefore not exempt from being impressed into his service. This return was supported by the Attorney General and Mr. Baldwin, on the part of the Crown, and opposed by Mr. Marryatt, on the part of the men, who contended, that altho' the men were born subjects of Great Britan, yet that by virtue of the Declaration of Independence in 1776, and the solemn recognition and ratification of that Declaration by Treaty, and by act of Parliament in 1783, these men, as well as all other citizens of the United States of America were become foreigners, and consequently not liable to be impressed into his Majesty's service. The judge however declared, that he could take cognizance of Nothing but the return, and therefore was bound to remand them. It is a circumstance well worthy the attention of the public, that in order to obtain the Writs of Habeas Corpus, to bring these men up, affidavits of their being Americans were made, but the return to the Writs are not upon oath, and the affidavits are not permitted to be read upon the hearing, so that false returns may be made and the judge cannot permit an affidavit to be read, which would prove the return, which is not upon oath to be false. As the men have found they must submit, a memorial of their case, verified by affidavits, will be immediately transmitted to the President of the United States, that proper measures may be taken to obtain redress.

PETERSBURG, January 10.

A gentleman in Boston, has received a letter from Algiers, which mentions, that the cruisers fitted and fitting out, are thirty-five in number; in general large ships, purchased at Marseilles, from the French Levant merchants—they mount from 25 to 40 guns.

Lexington, February 22.

The following is translated from the (Paris) Gazette Nationale, dated Nice, September 6.

The republic of Genoa, tired of the tyrannical conduct of the king of Sardinia towards them, have resolved to ask satisfaction, and demand an answer in eight days; and in case of an unsatisfactory answer, war will be declared against that court immediately.

[From a Winchester paper of December 30.]

The prudence of our Legislators cannot be sufficiently extolled. Questions of the highest moment to the dignity and independence of this country are depending; but no decision is to be attempted until we have fresh intelligence of the complexion of European politics:—the question, whether Citizen Genet has or has not deserved the denunciation from our executive is not to be determined until we know how that letter of denunciation has been received by the French government:—the neutral rights of our vessels are to be insulted until we know, whether by being embroiled with France; we shall be deprived of the only natural ally that can assist us in asserting them, or until we know whether the progress of the combined armies has not been such as to require a surrender of of those rights, and consequently of our Independence:—the firmness of our Executive, in demanding the delivery of our forts is not to be approved, until we know what Great Britain will say to that demand:—And again, their prudence induces them to conceal from the People the proceedings of the Executive and their own, relative to the Spanish affairs, until they have done so much, that the People cannot pretend to undo, but must SONGRE, MALGRE, support them.

Extract of of a letter from his excellency Major General ANTHONY WAYNE, to his excellency Major General CHARLES SCOTT; dated Head Quarters, Greenville, February 10th 1794.

"The hostile Indians sent in a flag some time since, proposing a cessation of arms, and requesting me to appoint the time and place for holding a general treaty.

"I agreed to a cessation for thirty days, and then to appoint the time and place for holding a general treaty, on condition, that they would surrender up all and every of the American prisoners in their possession, to the officer commanding at Fort Recovery, on or before the 14th instant.

"Whether the enemy were influenced by a serious wish for peace—or whether this overture was an insidious manœuvre, to gain time to secure their provision, and to remove their women & children to a place of more security, time will soon determine.

"For my own part, I think it rather problematical, from certain circumstances attending this extraordinary embassy.

"I have the honor to be with sincere esteem and regard,

"Your most obedient

"Humble servant,

"ANTY. WAYNE.

"The Honorable

"Maj. Gen. CHARLES SCOTT."

SACRED TO THE MUSES.

To CONTENT.

HAIL Content, pure fount of pleasure!
Sweetest bliss we mortals find;
Come, thou dear, thou precious treasure,
Gently sooth my anxious mind!

Fairest miniature of Heaven!
Spark etherial from above!
Let thy sweets, profusely given,
Still my joy, my blessing prove.

Cherub, come with all thy graces,
Ever in my bosom reign!
Riches, honors, titles, places,
Are, without thee, care and pain.

But with thee, the meanest station,
Humble weeds, and homely fare,
Still afford the consolation,
That we are a Father's care.

Come, thou source of purest pleasure!
Come, thou sorrow soothing power!
Shed thy influence without measure,
Rain thy joys a ceaseless shower.

On PROVIDENCE.

THAT great Prophet Moses, it is said, was called up by a voice from Heaven to the top of a mountain, where, in conference with the Supreme Being, he was permitted to propose to him some questions concerning his administration of the universe. In the midst of this Divine colloquy, he was commanded to look down on the plain below. At the foot of the mountain issued out a clear spring of water, at which a soldier alighted from his horse to drink. He was no sooner gone, than a little boy came to the same place; and finding a purse of gold, which the soldier had dropped, took it up and went away with it. Immediately after this came an infirm old man, weary with age and travelling, and having quenched his thirst, sat down to rest him by the side of the spring. The stripling missing his purse, returned to search for it, and demands it of the old man, who affirms he had not seen it; and appeals to heaven in witness of his innocence. The soldier not believing his protestation, kills him. Moses fell on his face with horror and amazement, when the divine voice thus prevented his expostulation: Be not surprised, Moses, nor ask why the judge of the whole earth has suffered this thing to come to pass. The child is the occasion that the blood of the old man is spilt; but know, that the old man whom thou sawest, was the murderer of that child's father. (Addison's evidence of the Christian Religion.)

At a meeting of the board of Trustees for the town of Lexington, February 17, 1794.

RESOLVED, That at the next meeting of this board, the trustees will take into consideration, the propriety of renting or selling the State-House, for the use of the town.—But as individuals have become subscribers of different sums for fitting up said house, Resolved, That notice be given in the two successive Gazettes of their intentions, by the publication of this resolve. The meeting to be held the first monday in March next, at M'Gowan's tavern.

By order of the board.
CORNELIUS BEATTY, Chairman.

I HAVE the PLANTATION for sale whereon I now live, containing five hundred acres of land, 140 of which is well cleared and under good fence—the building is tolerable good—the tract is well calculated to make two settlements, as the cleared land is in fields near half a mile apart, with excellent water on each—on one I have a DISTILLERY, the conveniencies of which is equal to any in this State. I will give three years credit for half the purchase money. For other terms apply to me on the premises.
